

Classic Panel – Colour throughout

The Classica' panel from Eternit is one of the only natural façade products that is produced with the colour throughout the panel. This unique design is produced wholly from natural pigments which are carefully sourced and manufactured for the panel to emulate a natural, organic character for decades to come.

Eternit, famous for succeeding in developing a new innovation in which revolutionized the way roofs and walls were to be constructed. For over 100 years Eternit has been involved in some of the greatest evolutions to architecture and design and have influenced developments throughout the globe. The Classica panel is one of the lines within the Eternit range and follows the legacy of offering a product that stands the test of time.

Its simplicity is in it's innovation as many products trial new ground with un-ried and un-tested designs, Eternit has continued to perfect an already proven format. Classica is produced from state of the art machinery and is available in medium and large format panels.

Thicknesses are available in 8mm, and 12mm and four natural colours are currently available.
